

[Help] Some articles get "stuck" in uploading imgs

Hi, the title itself is pretty much straightforward, sometimes (and only in specific articles) the software becomes "stuck" on uploading images, does not hang or block or anything, but just never moves on. I'm going around this by restarting the program and re-select all items, and it does it's job until hitting one of those articles that just freezes all all over again.

Since this is only sporadic and not all the time, i assume i am doing nothing wrong configuration wise, has anyone ever ran into such issues ?

Thanks.

This happens to me, too. Sometimes closing the program and reopening gets the stuck article "unstuck," sometimes it doesn't. It's somewhat annoying. Don't know if there is a permanent solution. If I see a particularly large image in an article, or a lot of images in ome article, I will delete some before uploading, with the thought that maybe size/number is causing the problem.

Actually in my case once they get stuck i can't really get them to post with the restart, i really don't know if it has to do with overall image size ore something like that, because i have some image heavy articles that get posted also.

Damm shame, i switched from wp-o-matic to this, and it looked promising, but this feature just kills the automatic part of it.

Probably there is some code in the article that blocks the post being made. Actually on some artciles, whhile they're being extracted, some faulty web codes may also be sticked to them and when they're made to post, the software gets locked up. Try deleting that article and allow the rest to post.

It has to do with image size, if i remove certain images it works (sometimes all), i think it has something to do with wordpress's xmlrpc, from what i have read it has a limit of 400kb regarding image size, but don't know how to get past that.

That right. Some servers limit the file sizes on upload and that is where the software gets stuck.

I will probably include a feature to ignore large images automatically or resize them perhaps.

I've had same issue for several days now. Even tried repairing software through the installer package but that didn't help.
