Yes ofcourse. When you add a new feed, you have an option to choose the category into which the posts go.

Any chance we could do this on a post by post basis? It's fine to define a default category for the feed but I would prefer to have say 10 categories on my blog and put different articles into different categories.

Thanks

Carty,

When I'm reviewing posts for uploading I need to 'drag' them over to another category for posting. Could you set it up so there's a 'by category' section to add posts to? The 'categories' would function the same as the 'feeds' shown under each blog.

thanks,
Doug

I'm planning it this way: In the list of items you will have column displaying the default category set for that particular feed. And when you click on it, there will be a drop-down with other categories that you can choose for that article. Does this sound better?

That sounds ideal to me.

Carty,

The things is, in the left pane, there needs to be an "By Category" section so posts can be added/viewed for a particular category. In other words, users can set up new feeds, but then 'switch' individual posts to a different category. The navigation in the left pane needs a bit of 'enhancement' for user friendly purposes, for Example:

- A. Blog Name
 - I. Feed Name
 - a.CategoryI
 - b.CategoryII.
 - c.Category ...n

or

- B. BlogName

- I. Feed Name(by default category)
(shows postings by feed name)
- II. CategoryI Postings
(shows postings by category)
- III. Category..n Postings

Anyway just an idea to include Categories, know you understand this better.

I understand but this wont work when you have a ton of categories in your blogs as many do. Maybe I will add column sorting option so you can easily see the categories sorted out.

Anyway, give me sometime and I will come up with something that's best for everyone :)
